

ABSTRACT

A communications system exchanges messages between users. A messaging store stores the messages. A messaging server accesses and manages messages of the message store. A plurality of servers interface between the messaging server and 5 different networks of the users. Processes employing dynamic mailboxes and for selectively retrieving messages are also provided.